The local authors of a "Food Lovers' Guide to Baltimore" will be signing copies of their new book on Friday from 6-8 p.m. at The Mallow Bar in Rosedale.

Guests will get free hot-chocolate shots and 10 percent off any cafe purchase during the signing. If you've never visited the cute "dessert bar," you'll want to try the shop's signature Mallow Crunchies, which are crispy rice-cereal treats made with homemade marshmallow.

They come with assorted toppings, dips, and add-ins, like popcorn, M&Ms, cashews, and toffee. They're seriously delicious.

You'll also have the pleasure of meeting Towson residents Kathy Wielech Patterson and her husband Neal, who penned a helpful resource to area restaurants, markets, breweries, wineries, and more.

The book also includes some great recipes like wild boar ragù from Aldo's in Little Italy, cream of crab soup from the Rusty Scupper, and imperial crab from The Prime Rib.

I've been an avid reader of Kathy's blog Minxeats.com for years. It's wonderful that her wit and love of food and Baltimore were translated into this book with the help of Neal, who says that he will always be her "grateful and willing sous chef."

What a team.
